Coaching Philosophy:

My philosophy has been solidified by my two eldest sons. Though a team may not win each game there is much to be learned from taking the journey to attain victory. Both young men have demonstrated a strong desire to win games - yet both have respected the game, the referees, and the opposing teams. When the game is finished they have both left the game on the field knowing they did everything within their ability to be successful.

You can ask nothing more than this when dealing with youth who are forming their values and principles in life. I am not a passive individual and often see potential in young people when they do not see it themselves. I try to bring this potential to the surface. My priorities in life are God - Family and Country.
